From Joseph J Luczkovich : Ecomorphology of fishes (Developments in Environmental Biology of Fishes)
Ecomorphology of fishes (Developments in Environmental Biology of Fishes):

Ecomorphology is the comparative study of the influence of morphology on ecological relationships and the evolutionary impact of ecological factors on morphology in different life intervals populations species communities and evolutionary lineages The book reviews early attempts at qualitative descriptions of ecomorphological patterns in fishes especially those of the Russian school More recent quantitative studies are emphasised including multivariate ap
